THE SUBJECT

Game of Thrones is the amazingly popular TV Show by HBO but before that it was a big series of books (literally big with more than 5.000 pages at this point), the book tell it's story by the point of view of different characters and that gets a little confusing sometimes as each chapter is a different character and that leads me to why I'm creating this visualization.

Most of the time, when I'm talking about Game of Thrones with my friends, the biggest complaining is that they can't keep track of what happened because of the multitude of characters (or they're complaining that George R.R. Martin killed of one of their favorites), so to address this problem I came to the following solution (based in a idea where a bookstore glued post-its in every page with a death on it <http://www.wired.com/2013/11/game-of-thrones-deaths/>): add a card in each page with a death, in this card there will be various information like name, cause of death, what happened afterwards, among others (get feedback on this) . And sticking out of the page will be a tab with the name dead guy so that the reader can pull it and read what happened to refresh the memory or get a surprise if they're the kind that like spoilers

DEATHS TABBED

DATA

The bulky of the data: the list of named Deaths is already collected what I need to do now is to refine it. To refine it I will remove the characters that don't have an official artwork. After that I'll be sitting around 30 to 35 deaths and I'll start collecting the details that I mentioned before. Another piece of data I already started gathering is the number of the page of each death.

TECHNOLOGY

I'll use Photoshop and Illustrator to create the cards with the information. If I run into the problem of the book getting too stuffed with cards I'll probably re-bind the book, if that happen I'll use Indesign to add the "instruction page" directly on the book instead of being a card like the rest.

CHALLENGES

The easiest part for the project will be gathering the information and putting them on the cards, most of the deaths I can remember what happened from the top of my head they'll just need a little research and reading to confirm the details. The hardest part, for me, will be cutting the cards and in case I need to re-bind the book as I'm not that good with manual work.

You win or you die

(or every major death in Game of Thrones Visualized)

We all know that Westeros is a dangerous country and kings are dying like flies (thanks Tyrion for this quote) and because of that sometimes it's hard to keep track of who's alive and who's not, so I present you the deaths, needless to say this book is literally filled with spoilers (duh).

So how does this work?

Name and title of the body

Lord Jon Arryn
Hand of the King/Warden of the East

Cause of death: Poisoned

People Responsible: Lannisters

Place of death: Kings Landing

Why?: Got close to discover that the King was not a true heir to the throne, the Queen got upset with his curiosity and arranged for his death.

Aftermath: Following his death the King rode to Winterfell and chose Eddard Stark as the new Hand of the King.

"Jon was a man of peace. He was Hand for 17 years - 17 good years."

Whenever you see a colored circle, it represents the family or allegiance of the character

A quote by or about the dead.

Now go and have fun while your favorite characters die in this killing spree they call a book
